President Trump Cutting China Tariffs by 10%; Ship Fees to Stop

After President Trump's meeting with China's Xi Jinping in South Korea, it was agreed that the U.S. would lower the fentanyl tariff by 10%, since China will crack down on fentanyl trafficking, but no date has been announced thus far. It was also agreed to postpone the fees Chinese ships would pay when they arrive at U.S. ports. No other news was reported about any other tariffs that may possibly be lowered as a result of the meeting, but President Trump made a statement, "We agreed on many things, with others, even of high importance, being very close to resolved." If anything further develops on this subject, we will be sure to notify you.
